Corporate

Herbalife Ltd. (NYSE: HLF) is a global nutrition and direct selling company. Our products include protein shakes; protein snacks; nutrition, energy and fitness supplements; and personal care products. The company pursues its global mission of 'changing people's lives' by marketing and selling its products through a network of over 1.9 million independent distributors who conduct business in 70 countries worldwide. For those wishing to become distributors, the company also offers a financially rewarding business opportunity.

HISTORY

Herbalife was founded by entrepreneur Mark Hughes in California in 1980. Hughes died in 2000. In July 2002, the company was acquired by an investor group led by Whitney & Co LLC and Golden Gate Capital, Inc. In April 2003, Michael O. Johnson joined the company as CEO. Johnson spent 17 years with the Walt Disney Corporation, most recently as president of Disney International, and brought to Herbalife a demonstrated track record of success as a leader and manager, including significant achievements in business building, global operations, sales leadership, marketing and product innovation.

In December, 2004, the company conducted a public offering and its shares are traded on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol "HLF." The company had record retail sales of $3.8 billion in 2008.

SCIENCE

Herbalife is committed to providing the highest quality products to its customers. The company's research and development organization combines the experience of the company's own product development specialists with a team of highly-accomplished scientists and doctors. Product research and development is directed by Chief Scientific Officer Steve Henig, Ph.D. Supporting the team is a Nutrition Advisory Board (NAB) made up of experts in the fields of nutrition and health and a Scientific Advisory Board (SAB), made up of leading experts whose work furthers the field of nutrition science, including Lou Ignarro, Ph.D., recipient of the 1998 Nobel Prize in Medicine. Both boards are chaired by David Heber, M.D., Ph.D., professor of medicine and public health at the University of California, Los Angeles (UCLA) School of Medicine.

for Human Nutrition to establish the Mark Hughes Cellular and Molecular Nutrition Laboratory to further advance research in human nutritional science. Additionally, the company recently opened a new 10,000 sq ft Product and Science Center at its South Bay facility in Torrance, Calif. In August 2007, the company awarded a research grant to the National Center for Natural Products Research at the University of Mississippi School of Pharmacy. The grant will allow NCNPR scientists to identify and study the biologically active chemicals found in botanicals, which may be used in the development of future dietary supplements and skin care products for Herbalife.

Three clinical studies have been completed that show the effectiveness of Formula 1.

The studies, conducted at University of California, Los Angeles; University of Ulm, Germany; and Seoul University National Hospital, Korea, showed that using Formula 1 meal replacements twice a day led to effective weight loss. Individuals in the studies who had certain weight-related conditions showed improvement in those conditions as a result of using Formula 1 shakes for weight loss.

The studies in Germany and Korea were conducted by members of our Nutrition Advisory Board, Drs. Marion Flechtner-Mors and Belong Cho, respectively. The results of the UCLA study were published in Nutrition Journal (August 2008); while the Korea results appeared in The International Journal of Clinical Practice (February 2009). Dr. Flechtner-Mors presented in October 2008 at the annual meeting of The Obesity Society in Phoenix, Arizona and at the European Congress of Obesity in Geneva, Switzerland.

SPORTS SPONSORSHIP

In March 2007, the company announced a five-year, multimillion dollar expansion of its agreement with AEG making Herbalife the presenting sponsor of the Los Angeles Galaxy. The agreement gives Herbalife on-jersey exposure for its brand that began with the 2007 season. The company became the official nutritional supplier of Italian football club Internazionale FC ("Inter") for the 2008/9 season. As part of the deal, Herbalife's H3O Pro isotonic drink, available throughout Europe, has become the team's isotonic drink. As of September 2009, it is also an official sponsor and Official Provider of Nutritional Products to one of Spain's leading La Liga football teams, Valencia CF.

The company also signed a four-year breakthrough agreement with the American Youth Soccer Organization (AYSO) that makes Herbalife the Official Nutrition Advisor and Official Health and Wellness Provider of the country's leading youth soccer organization. Similar to Herbalife's agreement with the Los Angeles Galaxy Major League Soccer club, the AYSO sponsorship gives Herbalife the rights to display its name and logo on the front of AYSO jerseys, a first for the non-profit national organization.

The company also sponsors over 50 sporting and fitness-related events, activities and athletes around the world that define the company's commitment to a healthy active lifestyle supported by good nutrition. These include the Chinese Cycling Team, East West Bank Classic and Amgen Tour of California. Herbalife sponsored the AVP Pro Beach Volleyball Tour during the 2004 – 2007 seasons.

Triathlons are among the many sports the company sponsors, which includes the company's role as presenting sponsor of the LA Triathlon. Other sponsored events range from tennis in Japan to dragon boat races in Hong Kong to badminton tournaments in the Philippines. Many Herbalife-sponsored athletes competed in the 2008 Olympics in China.

CORPORATE RESPONSIBILITY

The Herbalife Family Foundation (HFF) is a non-profit organization supported by Herbalife Ltd., its independent Distributors, employees, friends and families.

Created in 1994 by Herbalife founder Mark Hughes, HFF is dedicated to enhancing the quality of children's lives by creating programs and supporting non-profit organizations in the community that feed at-risk children.

In 2005, HFF was proud to introduce Casa Herbalife, a program to help provide healthy and nutritious meals by partnering with existing charities serving children. This program for children-at-risk is named after Casa Herbalife, an orphanage HFF built in Brazil in 1998 and continues to support today. We now have over 45 Casa Herbalife programs around the world feeding over 12,000 children everyday.
